Coloring History Book

Samuel Bush was born in 1821 in the little village of Worlingworth, England.

He lived about 100 miles from London.

Samuel met a shoemaker (Sutton Godbold) in nearby Wilby Village. Samuel learned how to make and repair shoes.

Samuel fell in love with the shoemaker's daughter. Her name was Hannah Godbold.

Samuel and Hannah married in 1841. Soon they had a baby boy. They named him James.

Samuel became a good shoemaker. He moved his family to London, where he could make more money.

They lived near the beautiful Regent Park.¹ Soon (1845) James had a baby sister to play with. Her name was Elizabeth.

¹ Regent's Park was also the neighborhood in London where the story "101 Dalmatians" took place. The Dalmatian dogs were taken for walks in Regent's Park by their human family.

One day Mormon missionaries came to see Samuel.

The missionaries told Samuel about the restoration of the Church of Jesus Christ through the Prophet Joseph Smith.

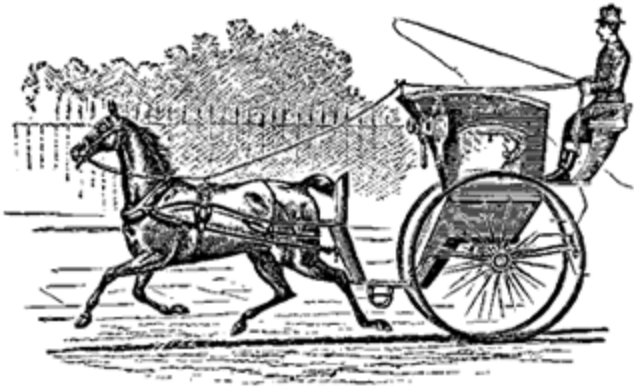

He read the Book of Mormon with his family.

The family prayed about what to do.

They decided to join the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in January of 1849.

Samuel worked hard to take care of his family. He found a way to make more money. He became a cab driver.

The Hansom Cab was the fastest way to get around London.² The driver sat high and behind, with reins and whip to control the horse.

Passengers could talk to the driver through a trap door near the rear of the roof.

Samuel drove people all around London for over 30 years.

² Master detective Sherlock Holmes preferred the Hansom cab for a swift ride through the streets of London.

In 1859 Samuel and Hannah had a baby boy. They named him Frederick Charles Bush.

When Frederick Charles was 8 years old he was baptized a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Samuel celebrated his children's weddings:

His daughter Elizabeth married George Bird in 1866

His son James married a cousin, Elizabeth Motts, in 1873

His son Frederick Charles married Martha White in 1884

It was a sad day in 1882 when
Samuel's wife, Hannah, died.
She was 60 years old.

After Hannah died, Samuel gave up cab driving. He started making and repairing shoes again.

He and all his family moved to a little village near London, called Denham.

The family thought about immigrating to Utah to be with the Latter-day Saints in Zion, where the Salt Lake Temple was being built.

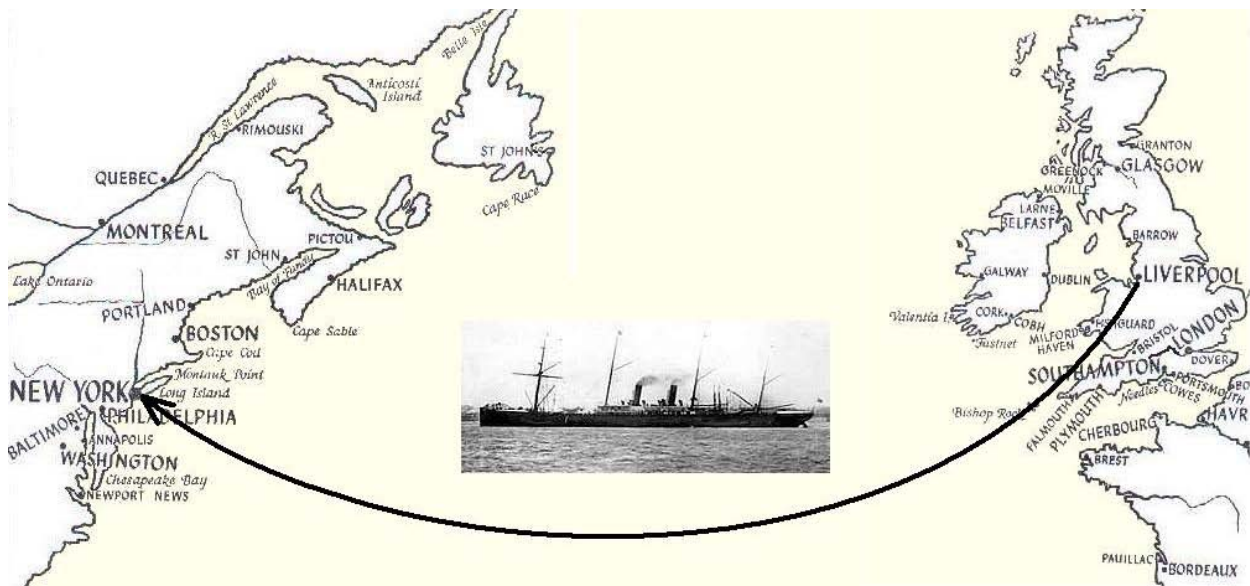

Samuel's son James was the first to go. James [46], his wife Elizabeth (Motts) [45], and their son "Ernie" [9] left Denham Village. They arrived safely in Salt Lake City on November 9, 1888 – just a week before "Ernie" turned 10.

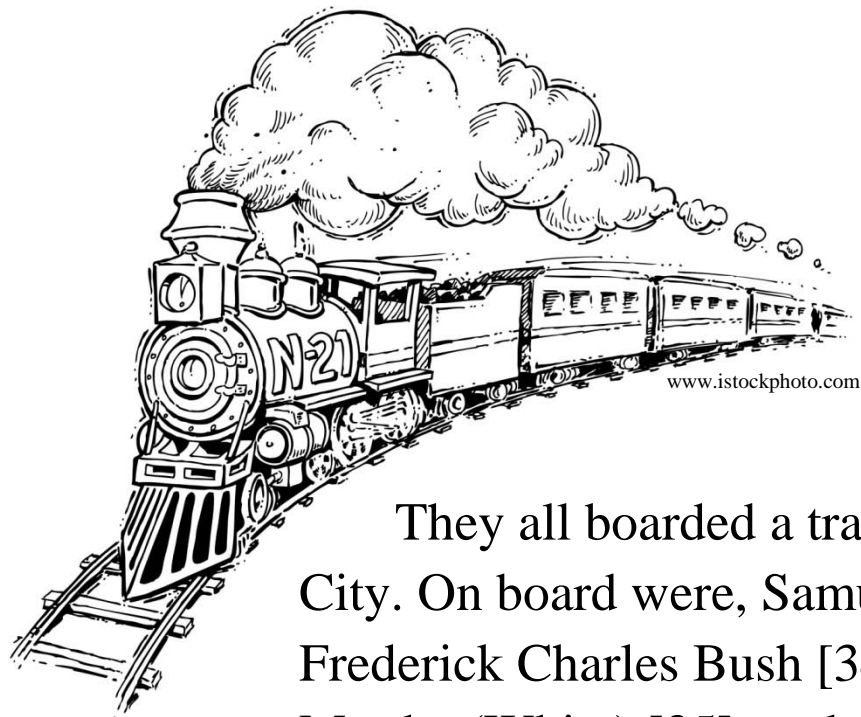

By 1892 the temple was nearing completion. Samuel's other son, Frederick Charles, also decided to leave Denham Village and move his family to Utah.

Samuel decided to go to Salt Lake City with them. He packed up all his shoemaking tools and made ready to go.

On June 3, 1893, Samuel Bush and family boarded the Steam Ship Arizona at Liverpool, England and crossed the Atlantic Ocean to New York in America.

They all boarded a train for Salt Lake City. On board were, Samuel Bush [72], Frederick Charles Bush [34], his wife Martha (White) [35], and their three children May [8], Samuel H. [5], and Rose [3].

At first they all stayed with James in his Salt Lake City home. Fred soon found a home nearby for his family to live in. Samuel chose to live with James.

Samuel set up shop and began making and repairing shoes for people in Salt Lake City.

Tragedy struck the family five months later when James [51] died unexpectedly in November 1893, leaving his widow, Elizabeth [50] and son Ernie [15]. Samuel continued living with them, helping as best he could.

Then in 1895 Frederick Charles [36] was hurt in an accident. He couldn't walk without crutches. He couldn't work, so his family was short on money.

Samuel moved in with Fred's family to help out. Samuel taught Fred's wife Martha how to make shoes to earn extra money. He was a beloved grandpa to Fred's children.

In 1898 Samuel Bush died in his sleep at Fred's home. He was 76 years old. He was buried in Salt Lake City.
